MNHS Copyright and Use Information

All material on the Minnesota Historical Society website is copyright Minnesota Historical Society unless otherwise indicated. It is for the personal use of students, scholars and the public. Copying or redistribution for commercial gain without permission of the Minnesota Historical Society is prohibited.

The nature of historical archival collections means that copyright or other information about restrictions may be difficult to determine. Whenever possible, the Minnesota Historical Society provides information about copyright owners and other restrictions in the catalog records, finding aids and donor records. The Minnesota Historical Society provides such information as a service to aid patrons in determining the appropriate use of an item, but the legal determination ultimately rests with the patron.

Images, footage and other content reproduced from the collections of the Minnesota Historical Society are for viewing, research and personal use only. Permission for commercial use or any publication, manipulation, display or distribution must be pre-approved by the Minnesota Historical Society.

Permission and license to use reproductions from images in Collections Online can be obtained by using the e-commerce system, clicking first on the "buy" button next to the image. For collection images not in Collections Online, permission and license to use photographic reproductions is granted via a Request for Permission form (PDF). Permission for using moving image footage, sound recordings and other non-image collection materials is handled using format-specific paperwork. Contact the Reference Library for more information.

Many — but not all — uses of Minnesota Historical Society materials will incur licensing fees.

Conditions of Use:

1. Possession of images, footage, or other content duplicated from the Minnesota Historical Society collections does not constitute permission to use it.
2. Permission and license to reproduce, publish, broadcast or display a Minnesota Historical Society image from the Collections Online system must be obtained electronically through that system. For images not in Collections Online, permission and license must be requested in writing, using this Request for Permission form (PDF). For other types of materials, permission and license must be requested in writing; contact the Reference Department for more information.
3. Permission is for one-time, one-project use only. Minnesota Historical Society retains all rights to images, footage or other content duplicated

DPLA
DIGITAL PUBLIC LIBRARY OF AMERICA
DPLA Data Use Best Practices
All metadata made available by the DPLA is done so under the Creative Commons Zero (CC0) Public Domain Dedication.
To be clear, the CC0 dedication means that you can use the metadata for any purpose without having to give attribution.
DPLA believes that giving attribution to all the sources of the metadata, including the Data Provider (cultural heritage institution that owns the object shared) and the Data Aggregators (institutions that aggregate metadata from multiple cultural heritage institutions, e.g., The Digital Library of Georgia, as well as the DPLA) would be helpful and appropriate given the goals of the DPLA and its partners. Thus, the DPLA suggests following these guidelines:
Give Credit
Give attribution to the data provider and all contributing data aggregators, including the DPLA. Aggregation is an important task of collecting, storing, and manipulating data for purposes of wide-scale discoverability and interoperability.
Keep the CC0 Public Domain Dedication intact for the metadata so that others who may reuse the data are aware.
If for any reason you cannot maintain attribution and rights information, consider linking back to the relevant item page(s) on the DPLA portal.
Data Can Change
Metadata obtained from the DPLA is not static and is subject to change. The data may be updated to correct incorrect information and to add new information on a regular basis. The best way to use metadata is via the DPLA API or via hyperlink to the relevant item page(s) on the DPLA portal.
Don't Mislead or Misrepresent
Do not use the metadata in any way that suggests that you are the data provider or aggregator.
Do not mislead others or misrepresent the metadata or its sources.
At Your Own Risk
The DPLA offers the metadata as-is and makes no representations or warranties of any kind concerning any metadata published by the DPLA.
Any use you make of the metadata must conform to all applicable laws and regulations in a given jurisdiction, notably concerning, but not limited to, data protection, defamation or copyright.
